

DANIELS TELLS OF LESSONS LEARNED IN EIGHT YEARS AS NAVY'S HEAD

Aviation Development Most Pressing Need—American Navy Must Be Greatest Unless U. S. Joins Association of Nations—Oil and Communications Prizes for Which Governments Strive.

(Copyright, 1921, by International News Service.)

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Feb. 25.—Development of aircraft is the most vital single consideration with which the American navy has to deal, in the opinion of Josephus Daniels, who, on March 5, resigns as secretary of the navy after eight years of service.

Secretary Daniels made this statement to an International News Service correspondent today in an interview which covered the whole range of the secretary's incumbency and dealt with every important problem which has confronted him.

"If I were coming in as secretary of the navy I would make the construction of my administration sound loud above everything else, the development of aviation," said the secretary. "If there is a future war—and I hope there will not be—aircraft will play an all important part from the very outbreak of hostilities and while they haven't learned to drop bombs accurately as yet, they will learn to do so eventually.

"We have conquered practically all the natural forces except the air and the day is rapidly approaching when we shall have conquered that. When that day comes I should like to see the navy leading even as it is in flying across the Atlantic."

When Mr. Daniels goes out of office on March 5 he will have served longer than any previous secretary of the navy. Gideon Welles, the only other secretary to serve two terms, lacked four days of equalling Daniels' record having held the office from March 17, 1861, until March 3, 1869.

There are several other points of similarity between the careers of Gideon Welles and Josephus Daniels. Before coming to Washington, Welles was editor of the Hartford, Conn., Times. Daniels was and still is editor of the "Raleigh Daily News," another country paper as the secretary likes to get it.

Welles was in Lincoln's cabinet during the Civil War and in the reconstruction days which followed under Johnson. Under Daniels' guidance the American navy reached its highest development and participated with honor in the world war, conveying nearly a million of America's fighting men to France without the loss of a soldier.

"The future of the American navy depends upon the attitude of the Harding administration," said Secretary Daniels. "George Washington had no secretary of the navy and the American navy may have no separate representative in the cabinet."

"It has been proposed by General Daves—I believe, that the War and Navy Departments be consolidated if the United States enters an association of nations permitting a reduction in armaments such a consolidation probably would be possible.

"If we do not go into such an association running the navy will be the biggest job in the cabinet."

Daniels believes the post will be the biggest job in the cabinet because he is convinced that the United States must have the most powerful navy in the world if she is to "play a lone hand" in the affairs of the world."

"I have no patience," he said, "with this talk of being the second naval power in the world."

The American navy must be second to none; it must be first and I believe will be a majority of people of America will not consent until it is."

"What about communications?" Mr. Secretary, he was asked, during the peace conference," he said, "I have three years in three weeks I learned very thoroughly a good many things which I had known only vaguely before. I learned that oil and communications are the two things that all great powers are most interested in, because they are the two prime essentials for the efficient operation of a fleet."

"Oil is the very life of sea fighting. No real barrier can fight an oil-burner on anything like equal terms. And a fleet without communications is a fleet without eyes. I have spent most of the island of Yap since the peace conference. However, those matters for the State Department to consider."

from the officers' mess is said to have aroused a great deal of criticism among officers of the navy, Mr. Secretary. Have a majority of those officers come round to your way of thinking?"

"I shouldn't say they had come round to my point of view," he replied.

"If you had it to do over again would you handle the Sims incident any differently?" Daniels was asked.

"When an officer is determined to break into print," said the secretary, "it is sometimes difficult to determine how he should be treated. Many fine officers in the navy thought Sims should be court-martialed and urged me to do it. They believed discipline was hurt by the admiral's attack and at first I thought that might be true to some extent."

"Upon reflection, however, I am convinced that Sims did the navy little, if any, harm. The matter was fully aired and the truth eventually became known in the navy and out of it. If Sims had been court-martialed he could have posed as a martyr."

"In a way I am grateful to Sims. By stirring up a congressional investigation he was the means of getting into the official records a true account of the work of the navy in the world war."

"I have always been a great believer in the right of free speech. Even during the war I stood out for that principle. If I erred at all in the case of Sims, it was better to err on the side of greater freedom."

"Do you still believe in the so-called democratization of the navy?"

"The democratization of the navy has just begun," said the secretary. "I have merely driven the entering wedge in the past a chasm as deep as a well separated the officer from the enlisted man. That chasm must be bridged. The ship must be an American institution. The man shoveling coal must be made to feel that he is the equal of an admiral in courage and patriotism and that he can be an admiral if he does his duty well and studies to qualify himself for the greater responsibilities. But promotion must come from merit, not from any sentimental misconception of the real meaning of democratization."

"Much of the work of the navy is highly technical. Mr. Secretary. After eight years of experience do you still believe the secretary of the navy should be a civilian?"

"I have spent nearly six billion dollars since I have been secretary of the navy," he answered. "Next year the secretary will spend three hundred and fifty or four hundred million more. That is a civilian task."

"On the whole," said the secretary in summing up, "I have had eight very happy years, albeit eight years of very hard work. It has been a privilege to be secretary of the navy in the days of preparation for the war; it has been a truly great privilege to serve with men who have made such splendid records during the war. Though I shall be out of the navy in a few days now I shall always be a shipmate with the officers and men of the navy and from now on I shall be interested in its affairs."

FOR SALE—TWO LITTLE TROLLEYS

Deputy Sheriff Chas. Highland Cars to Tracks—Company Over Town of Lloyd Over $1,500.

Who wants to buy two nice, little trolley cars?

Two of the dinkiest busses that ever bumped over the tracks between Highland and New Paltz are offered for sale for the non-payment of taxes, amounting to $1,500, or to be exact $1,541.67 due the town of Lloyd. The cars may be easily seen before purchase for one of them is, securely chained to the tracks near the ferry slip and the other is fastened at what is known as "Tony Farling's Corner."

This situation faced the New Paltz, Highland and Dutchess Traction Company Thursday when the company crews went out to run the two cars. While crews of passengers stood by with mouths opened in amazement, Deputy Sheriff Harry Elliot paced back and forth between the two cars to see that no one attempted to slide the heavy cars off the tracks held the two beauties of Highland in their tracks.

The attachment was filed in the name of Albert H. Martin, collector of the town of Lloyd. The notice pointed out the village and on the cars state that the amount due totals $1,541.67. This, however, only covers the amount due the town of Lloyd and is divided in the following manner: Unpaid taxes on the power house, $117.54; fees in connection with the same, $5.89; amount unpaid on franchise, school and other taxes, $1,418.24; fees, $58.45.

Officials stated that they would take action at once and secured the advice of counsel. The company maintained trolley service Thursday night on the two attached cars. The road has been in more or less defective condition for some time.

"The trolley order barring what"

Here is the new Cabinet as tentatively selected by President Warren G. Harding: Secretary of State, Charles Evans Hughes, of New York; Secretary of Treasury, Andrew W. Mellon, of Pennsylvania; Secretary of War, John W. Weeks, of Massachusetts; Postmaster General, Will H. Hays, of Indiana; Attorney General, Harry M. Daugherty, of Ohio; Secretary of Navy, Edwin Denby, of Michigan; Secretary of Interior, Albert B. Fall, of New Mexico; Secretary of Agriculture, Henry C. Wallace, of Iowa; Secretary of Commerce, Herbert Hoover, of California and Secretary of Labor, James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania.

CHANDLER TO START SCHOOL FOR TROOPERS

And Police Chiefs May Pick Men To Send There—Miller Approves Major's Plans And Also Fearon Will To Put Conservation Enforcement in Troopers' Hands.

It was not the consideration of an increased salary that induced Major George F. Chandler to reconsider his resignation as superintendent of the state police, but the approval by Governor Miller of the major's pet idea of a state police school and the broadening of the powers of the constabulary by the addition of two new troops.

Major Chandler announced Thursday that his "dream had come true" and that with the support of the governor and legislative leaders, the school would be started early this spring at the Troy barracks.

Under Major Chandler's plan, the school will be patterned after the army training school at Leavenworth, Kansas, which Major Chandler attended. The cost of maintenance will be not more than $3,000.

Major Chandler said, instruction in the psychology of police work, the penal law, police history, first aid, and witness procedure will be given by Major Chandler. Lieutenant Cornelius Calahan of New York city, an expert in witness work, Edward G. Griffin, deputy attorney general, and governmental legal experts. Their services, Major Chandler said, have been offered free.

Major Chandler purposes to permit police chiefs of municipalities in the state to send picked men to his school, with a view to bringing the state and city police together in "one big brotherly spirit."

"I believe the establishment of this school, the first of its kind in state police organizations in the country, will be epoch-making," Major Chandler said. "There is no doubt but that the program will do more to elevate the police standard in this state, than any other than conceivable step. I am more than pleased to think Governor Miller is enthusiastic about the idea, and has told me to go ahead with this old dream of mine."

"This alone would compensate my reconsideration of my resignation. There are other things, however, that have entered into it. This Albany-Troy trolley strike in itself has made me realize the importance and the scope of the opportunity in this department. It has, without a doubt, crystallized a spirit in the department, and a loyalty hardly paralleled in any department."

Major Chandler, under provisions of a bill offered by Senator George B. Francis of Saratoga, which Governor Miller has approved, will take over the enforcement of the conservation laws, heretofore handled by game wardens. Locusts will be now directed that work, will be retained under Major Chandler.

When the two additional troops are established, there will be 250 troopers in the state. Two troops will bring in 114 additional men and officers. The announcement that Major Chandler would stay as police head was received with jubilation throughout his force.

BROOKLYN FIRE SCARES HUNDREDS

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, Feb. 25.—Twelve hundred persons were driven into near-zero weather in their night clothing early today when a $100,000 fire swept through the four-story apartment at Kosciuszko avenue, in Brooklyn.

The blaze was the result of an overheated furnace. Seven women were rescued in a thrilling manner. One woman was overcome by the smoke and seven firemen were victims of frozen hands and feet.

The building was completely destroyed and adjoining apartment buildings were damaged. At one time it was feared the entire block might be destroyed.

Under Man Caught Fugitive.

James H. Taylor, formerly of Dwaarkill, Ulster county, now a real estate agent in New York, was writing in his apartment at 252 West 24th street, when a negro walked in on him. The negro's explanation as to how he entered did not satisfy Mr. Taylor, who took him to the 24th street station. At the latter place it was brought out that Mr. Taylor had made an important capture, the police being after the man for a murderous assault committed in November on a woman on Jane street. The negro, James Brown, was held in $25,000 bail for the grand jury. Mr. Taylor was complimented highly for his capture. He is a brother of Mrs. E. M. Rank, of Dwaarkill.

SINN FEIN WINS BIG BATTLE

Casualties of Crown Forces Include Major Commanding—Police Lories Struck Roads That Were Mined and Then 300 Irishmen Began Firing From Ambush.

Dublin, Feb. 25.—One of the biggest battles in the warfare which has been raging in Ireland was fought today near Ballyvourney when the Crown forces were defeated by a heavy section of the Irish republican army.

It is known that two members of Crown forces were killed and six wounded but the total casualties have not been checked up. One of the killed was Major Grant, commanding the Black and Tan police. There were more than 300 Sinn Feiners in the band which attacked the military police.

Eight police lorries filled with Black and Tans were passing through the Cooloe district, west of Macroom, when they ran into roads that had been mined.

An attack was opened upon the lorries with the Sinn Feiners firing from behind barricades.

From a skirmish the engagement grew into a furious battle with the crash of gunfire audible for miles. Reinforcements of heavily armed policemen were rushed to the scene from the Cork barracks and joined in the fray.

The roads in the Ballyvourney district are flanked by wooded hills affording excellent shelter for attackers.

It was understood that there were about seventy black and tan policemen in the lorries that were attacked.

According to information received here this afternoon, the Crown forces being outnumbered, were compelled to retreat after an action of two hours, leaving part of their wounded behind them on the field of battle.

Advance Normal Course.

Action taken by the state board of regents affects the normal school at New Paltz. The regents advanced the normal school courses from two to three years and they also adopted tentatively a new instrumental and vocal music syllabus by which students under private instruction may earn "credit" for their work.

The new normal school course of three years will become effective next September, but the class entering in September this year will be graduated and will receive the state normal diploma at the end of two years' course, the content of which will be made up from the new three-year curriculum.

Rambling Sale Closed Saturday.

The rambling sale being conducted by the members of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer in the Grange building, opposite the Grange, closed Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock. The women still have a number of useful articles for sale, and will continue to receive donations up to the day of closing.

HARDING STOPS SPECULATION AS TO HOOVER AND WALLACE

Former Accepted Commerce Portfolio Over Phone Thursday Night and Wallace Is Slated for Agriculture—Harding Sorry Reporters Were "Scooped."

By Telegram to The Freeman.

St. Augustine, Fla., Feb. 25.—President-elect Harding today closed up two more places in his cabinet by confirming the appointment of Herbert Hoover to be secretary of commerce and stating that "unless there should be some unlooked for contingency," Henry Wallace of Iowa, will be secretary of agriculture.

Mr. Harding waited until just a few minutes before departing for a day's activities in Jacksonville to confirm to the reporters here the announcement made in New York last night concerning Mr. Hoover.

"I talked with Mr. Hoover about 8 o'clock last night by long distance telephone," said Mr. Harding, briefly. "The matter is closed."

"With regard to the terms surrounding the Hoover appointment," Mr. Harding said there was nothing unusual.

"Mr. Hoover," he said, "has been doing precisely what every other prospective member of the cabinet has been doing—consulting with me regarding policies that are to be pursued. All of those whose appointments have been announced and those under consideration have outlined their policies and I have outlined mine."

"Mr. Hoover and I are in perfect accord regarding the policies that are to be pursued in his department. I talked with Mr. Hoover over the telephone in order to save him a trip down here. We are in perfect accord."

"I would not want Mr. Hoover in my cabinet if he were not going to do things in his department. In our talk he wanted to know about the policies of the administration and was fully informed of them. He wanted to know the things that I would want done and I am glad to repeat that our ideas were in accord on things that needed to be done."

The announcement concerning Mr. Wallace was brought about by an article which Mr. Wallace recently contributed to a magazine as he practically announced his own appointment. When this article was called to Mr. Harding's attention, he said: "What do you want me to do, close up this cabinet today?"

"Yes," came the reply from the reporters.

"Well, all I can say with regard to this," said Mr. Harding, "is that unless some unforeseen contingency arises, I strongly suspect that Mr. Wallace will be the next secretary of agriculture."

STATE'S LAWYERS EXTRICATE FELTS

Balk Conniff's Examination on Industrial Side of Matewan Shootings—Felts's Testimony as to Robbery of Bodies Riddled.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Williamson, W. Va., Feb. 25.—A solid battery of objections from the state, sustained by Judge Robert D. Bailey, combated a furious cross-examination of questions hurled today at Tom Felts on the witness stand in the "trigger trial" by J. J. Conniff for the defense.

The state's counter barrage was successful. It silenced Conniff's fusillade. Thus broke down an elaborate attempt to draw from the head of the Baldwin-Felts detective agency answers to these questions:

1. Is the coal operators' association contributing to the prosecution of Sid Hatfield and his 18 co-defendants in the trial of the murder of Albert Felts, brother of Tom?

2. Were the evictions of union miners' families by the Felts detectives which led to the battle at Matewan a part of a fixed campaign to wreck the Mingo branch of the United Mine Workers of America and defeat the mine strike?

With bull dog tenacity Conniff pursued his questioning on these subjects, defying and trying to circumvent the steady counter fire of the five attorneys specially engaged to prosecute the case.

Finally he was forced to give up. Felts was excused but Conniff announced he would recall him.

Prior to touching on the theme of industrial warfare which is the "leitmotif" of the whole drama, Conniff succeeded in riddling that part of Tom Felts's testimony of yesterday which related to the alleged robbery of the bodies of slain defendants by Sid Hatfield or other defendants.

The witness was forced to admit that he had no personal knowledge of such robbery.

BAKS ACCUSED PLAYERS.

Ilan Johnson Firm Against Those Involved in Ball Scandal.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Feb. 25.—The baseball players now awaiting trial for alleged acceptance of bribes, will never appear in the American League again, Ilan B. Johnson, president of the league, said here today.

"If a jury happens to make a mistake, as they sometimes do and chooses any of these players—I say here and now that such a player will never be permitted to wear a uniform in the American league," Johnson said.

Do the Dead Speak to Us?

This will be the theme of the Sunday night sermon by Mr. Baranowski in the St. James Methodist Church. On account of the storm of last Sunday the program was postponed for a week. The preacher's aim will be to show in what manner the dead do speak. There will be some of the old-time melodies which have no doubt been sung by a male chorus. All the music for this service will be popular in its character.

McClintock Lined $100.

Richard McClintock of Port Ewen was fined $100 in police court by Judge Scherick on Thursday. He was arrested for driving a motor car on a Sunday at the Elmhurst street car line. At the court session $100 was paid by his parents, Richard and Mary McClintock. The judge also ordered that the next time he is arrested the penalty would likely be heavier.

SNOW REMOVAL TO COST $1,500

Complete Cleaning Up Downtown Streets Today—Uptown Was Completed Tuesday—Zero Weather Again Grips City.

When residents were cheered by the mild weather and hoping that winter had done its "darndest" the thermometers suddenly dropped during the night to below the zero mark and this morning along the Strand they registered anywhere from 6 above to 2 below zero at 7 o'clock and throughout the morning the weather continued biting and chill. If the cold spell continues there is a chance that ice will be harvested from the Hudson river fields in this vicinity.

The blizzard that broke over the city Sunday will cost the city between $1,200 and $1,500, it is estimated, for snow removal. Untown the business section was cleaned up by Tuesday night, and it was expected that tonight would see the downtown streets dug out. Of course the figures given are approximate as the total cost of snow removal can not be arrived at until the work is completed.

The blizzard this February was not as severe as that of last February and did not tie up traffic to any extent. Last winter traffic was tied up for over a week, and the snow removal bill was extremely high. The few days work given the men by the city this week has helped a number who were without work.

REFUSES FORTUNE FOR GIRL AND SEA

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 25.—A jolly sea rover in Arthur McLaughlin and he loves a charming Irish girl at this port. Thereby hangs this story.

McLaughlin said today he had received word from Edinburgh, Scotland, that his uncle, John McLaughlin, is dead and has left him $500,000 pounds, $1,158,000. But before he gets the money he must give up his sea roving, forget his Irish beauty here and settle down in Scotland as the husband of a "bonny Scotch lassie," the choice of his uncle.

"Nothing doing," said McLaughlin. "I love the sea and I love my pretty Irish colleen too well to give them up for money. There's something better than money in the world and that's happiness. I'd rather live in a humble cottage with the girl I love than in a castle with a woman I didn't care for. I'd rather row the sea than row the boulevard. That's why I've told the lawyers I don't want this legacy of 500,000 pounds if there is a string tied to it."

May Bar Ford's Weekly.

No amount of doubt about it. Ford's weekly, the Independent, has been temporarily removed from the files of the public libraries here, it became known today. Secretary V. C. Wilson stated that the matter of having it entirely under consideration by the trustees and an investigation is now being conducted. The matter will be taken up at the trustees' meeting next week.

Early M. Hummel To Play.

Early M. Hummel will play at both the morning and evening sessions Sunday at the Elmhurst street car line. At the court session $100 was paid by his parents, Richard and Mary McClintock. The judge also ordered that the next time he is arrested the penalty would likely be heavier.

"I've made up my mind that religion is good for entire folks, but I won't do for one," said the latter.

"Why not?" the minister asked.

"I can't afford it."

"Have you found religion a burden?" Mr. Sturgeson asked.

down from the shipyard's roof and greeted his master with fond affection. The two went away together. They walked up a deserted street and around to the old graveyard. When it was quite dark, they groped their way through the weeds, briars and stumps, between moss-covered tombstones, to their old spot under the oak tree. There Simon made a bed of boughs, picked from the evergreens that grew in the graveyard, and lay down upon it under his overcoat with the dog Christmas. He found it impossible to sleep, however. When he closed his eyes a dark thought began troubling him.

It seemed to be saying, "What are you going to do now, Mr. Simon Westmeyer?"

He was pleased that it seemed to say Mr. Simon Westmeyer. He lay for a long time looking up at the starry moon in sky, and at the shadows

"I don't care who you belong to," I said. "I don't care who you fight for."

There was a quivering note in the voice of Miriam Shusterman. Her gesture now led to a corner of sympathy. She sat up and gave to him—as he looked, terrible man, with just a glimmer of sympathy in his otherwise confident.

It over and over was in kind of sympathy, the one of that moment. She felt that she must speak out to some one. So loudly she felt the impulse that she had been speaking to the stars and the cold government. Here at last was a human being with a glimmer of sympathy in his voice.

"I thought I would come here," she said. "I thought I would come here, but when I got here I was afraid. I was afraid I would be afraid of the girl mentioned. I wish I could do it."

"No, you don't, either," said Miriam Shusterman. "Sometimes I've thought that I might as well as be afraid of the girl. But I was just better myself. I was just better myself."

Literature of the Canadas.
Canadian literature has voluminous and impressive attainments to show. Take, for example, Robson's three great writers of the nineteenth century, Delabroy, Jannet and Pellety. Jannet has compiled a dictionary of the French language in two volumes. Pellety wrote a work of 25,000 pages on Canadian history, and Delabroy wrote a grammar of Canadian French. The most indefatigable writer, however, was Maurice Verchère. He translated Pons's "Vieilles Ombres," Arrière's "Océane Platoon," Chénier's "Paris," and Whittier's, as well as works from French, Hebrew, Indian and Chinese. He also knows how to find the time to do it. Among the leading French writers of the present, Pons, Stéven, Tourn, Zerkow, the Capet brothers and Theriault have all been French writers.

A professor of New York University announces that women should smoke pipes rather than cigarettes because the former will do them less harm. Foolish man. If he wanted his advice to be taken, he should have said that a girl looks prettier smoking a pipe than a cigarette.

John Drinkwater, the noted British playwright, has followed his "Abraham Lincoln" with "Cromwell" and "Mary, Queen of Scots," and now is said to have a fourth play in process of construction with Robert E. Lee as the central figure. With the literary artist's known inclination to look for big material in the tragedy of failure, Mr. Drinkwater passes on from two successful historical careers to two unsuccessful.

The Ohio judge who promised women jurors to equip the jury box with curtains to shield their ankles from public gaze has kept his word. A beautiful green curtain has been selected. Green is not only restful to the eyes but certain shades are indeed pleasant to look at, but green does not harmonize with all styles of beauty. And the desirability of such curtains will depend, of course, on the individual juror.

The practice of paying rewards to informers, which was predicted when the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act were passed, will become a reality if the latest ruling by Attorney General Palmer is sustained. He holds that rewards up to $5,000 may be paid to informers from the sale of liquors seized but only in cases where information is furnished of a fraud upon the Customs Service. The ruling does not apply yet to domestic violators but it is only a short step from one ruling to another. If informers are to be rewarded, why discriminate against violators who bring liquor in the country from Canada or other foreign lands and allow domestic violators to continue? On the mere chance of getting a reward, many natural sneaks will make trouble for their neighbors. If New York state is to follow the Federal Prohibition program, state rewards also will be necessary and espionage will become a popular and paying pastime with certain people in every community.

A letter from a commercial traveler to the New York Herald complains of the abuse of railroad passes. On several occasions curiously impelled him to ask what percentage of passengers were riding on passes and in every case on those trains it was over sixty per cent. The commercial man, paying almost four cents a mile for travel, together with ever-increasing hotel bills, fails to see why railroad employees should have practically unlimited pass privileges for themselves and their families. The only thing the railroad has to sell is transportation for freight or passengers. It pays its employees for their work and then furnishes them with transportation free. Gas and electric companies pay their employees for the work they do, but the employees pay the company for whatever gas or electricity they consume. It is the same with the telephone companies, whose employees pay for the service furnished to them. The farmer does not supply the families of his farm hands with produce without making a corresponding deduction in wages. Manufacturers and merchants may supply employees with their goods at cost, but do not give them away. When passes to practically every holder of public office were abolished a number of years ago, travel temporarily decreased but revenue later increased. If the unlimited pass privilege to employees were abolished now the result might be the same and the public might benefit eventually by lower fares.

THE POOR PRINCE.

According to a Tokyo newspaper, all Japan is "shaken" over the question as to the choice of a wife by the Crown Prince of that country, and that in the connection everywhere is involved the long-standing contention between the extreme traditional or conservative and the forces of progressive liberalism. No one can fail to pity the poor young prince whose love affairs are smothered up in politics to such an extent. The situation seems medieval and far eastern indeed, but under existing law is the young Prince of Wales much better off? Under the act of 1772 a prince of the royal house of Britain can not marry without the King's consent until he is 25, and even with parental approval he must give notice to the Privy Council, with twelve months grace, and finally he may please himself only if the two Houses of Parliament do not disapprove of his choice.

This law being still in force, no wonder its repeal is now suggested. But even with the old law repealed, the Prince of Wales would have none too much freedom of choice. Contenting politicians may not wish to dictate, as in the case of Japan, but tradition and custom still demand royal blood and the said is further restricted now that Teutonic royalties are without the pale. With both Teutonic and Catholic royalties eliminated, the field of choice is so narrow that it looks as if the proposition to permit the Prince of Wales to marry into the British nobility will have to be seriously considered.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

You Couldn't Fool Him.

Patrik, lately over, was working in the yards of a railroad. One day he happened to be in the yard office when the force was out. The telephone rang for some time before Pat came to the conclusion that it ought to be answered. He approached the instrument cautiously and slowly put the transmitter to his mouth, as he had seen the "boss" often do.

"Hello, there," he called.

"Hello," answered some one at the other end, "is this eight-six-eight-four-eight?"

"Aw, g'wan; phat d'ye think Ol am a box car?" replied Pat.

Interlocutor—I hear you raise pigs Sambo.

Sambo—Yes, Sir.

Inter—Do you ever name them?

Sambo—Oh, yes, I have one and his name is "Ink."

Inter—Why do you call him "Ink?"

Sambo—Because he is always running out of the pen.

Nom de Phone.

"Is Mr. Smith in?" inquired the visitor at the office of a Newark business man.

"Mr. Smith? Mr. Smith? I don't think we have any person by that name," replied the office boy.

"John Henry Smith was the name," said the caller. He gave it to me over the telephone.

"Were you looking for John Henry Smith?" inquired a member of the firm, who was passing by. "You want to see our Mr. Kraemerlicht. This is a new office boy, and is not aware that John Henry Smith is the telephone name of Mr. Kraemerlicht. Mr. Kraemerlicht found that it was impossible to make anyone understand his name over the telephone, so he simplified it to John Henry Smith. A nom de phone."

"I see," said the visitor. "You might also call it a phony name."

Observer: "I noticed you got up and gave that lady your seat in the street car the other day."

Observer: "Since childhood I have respected a woman with a strap in her hand."—Clipped.

"A Bubbler!"

A white man, walking along a road where an old colored man was white-washing a fence, noticed that the brush he was using contained very few bristles.

"Look here, Rastus," exclaimed the man, pausing and looking at the operation, "why don't you get a brush with more bristles in it?"

"What fo', Mistah Smith, what fo'?" returned Rastus, glancing from the fence to his questioner.

"What fo'?" expostively replied Mr. Smith. "Why, if you had a brush with more bristles in it you could do twice as much work."

"Dat's all right, Mistah Smith," said Rastus, negatively shaking his head, "but I hain't got twice as much work to do."

Only Pair.

The goose had been carved and everybody had tested it. It was excellent. The negro minister, who was the guest of honor, could not restrain his enthusiasm.

"Dat's as fine a goose as I evah see," Brother Williams, he said to his host. "Whar did you get such a fine goose?"

"Well, now pshaw," replied the carrier of the goose, exhibiting great dignity and reluctance. "When you preach a special good sermon I never am so yuh whar you got it. I hope you will show due consideration."

That Was It.

When the captain of the fire department was about to resign, his men banded together and purchased an elaborate embossed silver horn to present to him at a meeting in the town hall. The fireman who was chosen to make the presentation practiced his speech for days beforehand. The chief, who had been informed of what was to happen, also practiced his speech of acceptance. They rehearsed together and were "letter perfect" when they mounted the platform in the town hall. The cheering which greeted them had, however, a dangerous sound. Raising the horn at arm's length, the fireman uttered an expression on his face, and said:

"Well, Bull, here's your horn!"

The chief rose slowly to his feet and smiled: "Well, is that it?"

DROP IN CROP VALUES

Decline of More Than Five Billion
Shown in 1920.

Corn Leads the List With $1,062,000,
000—Ten Crops Show Gain in Value, Oranges Leading.

Washington.—The value of farm crops of 1920 and of the farm animal products and animals sold and slaughtered, as finally determined by the bureau of crop estimates, United States Department of Agriculture, is $18,896,000,000 or $5,105,000,000 below the total of 1919. The drop is almost entirely confined to crops, among which the chief declines in value are: corn, $1,062,000,000; cotton lint and seed, $1,200,000,000; wheat, $874,000,000; hay, tame and wild, $325,000,000; tobacco, $248,000,000; and oats, $161,000,000.

On the other hand, as many as ten crops gained in value, chief of which are oranges, with a gain of $32,000,000, and sugar beets, $24,000,000. Other items of gain are cabbage, $11,000,000; pumpkins, $10,000,000; sorghum cane seed and sirup made, $7,000,000. Small gains were made by soy beans, sugar-beet seed, maple sugar and sirup, and onions. Apparently, the products of the farm would let have gained $223,000,000 in value in the comparison with 1919.

After offsetting gains against losses, the net crop-value reduction in 1920 below 1919 is $1,833,000,000, while only $237,000,000 is found in the total of farm animal products and farm animals sold and slaughtered. The wool decline is as yet unrealized, but it is reckoned at $37,000,000. Of the animals sold and slaughtered, the decline for cattle and calves is $223,000,000, and for swine, $427,000,000. But on the other side of the account, dairy products gained $311,000,000, and poultry raised and eggs produced, $180,000,000.

It is the rate that, in the upward and downward movements of prices, farm animals and animal products lag behind crops. So extreme was the lag in the price of animals and animal products in 1920, on account of the extraordinary fall in the prices of crops with a short period of time, that the total crop-value of 1920 is reckoned to be only 56 per cent of the total value of all farm products. In the estimates for a long series of years, this is the first crop value estimate that has fallen below 60 per cent of the total of all products.

SING SING BARS SILK SHIRTS

Jazz Hosi and Linen Collars Are Also Banned by Warden of New York Prison.

New York.—Warden Lewis E. Lawes of Sing Sing issued an order forbidding the convicts to wear silk shirts, fancy neckties, silk vests and linen collars.

Henceforth they will have to confine their sartorial embellishments to the prison uniform supplied by the state, which is compact and comfortable but not beautiful.

The warden found the order necessary because of the increasing number of convicts who get money from home and who have been expending it on clothing, so the yard of the prison began to resemble a rainbow drunk on home-made brandy.

The guards, even with their brass buttons, have been quite annoyed by the jazz shirts and neckties.

Keeps Vigil for Forty Years.
London.—In May, 1900, a soldier, married two months, left Cardiff in a ship, telling his wife he would return on New Year's day for dinner. Every New Year's day for 40 years the woman has sat down to her dinner alone, with an empty plate opposite her. She says she will keep the vigil to the end.

KIL-VE
A HUNDRED YEARS OLD

And in the Bloom of Youth—Millions
Now Living Will Never Die.

Do these things appeal to you? Unending human life; perpetual health; lasting and satisfying political adjustments; comprehensive economic arrangements; no more fear of dependent old age; no more blindness, lameness, deafness, dumbness; no more bald heads, glass eyes, false teeth or wooden legs; no more sickness, disease or pestilence; no more sorrow or sorrow! No, we are not trifling; these things and more are absolutely sure, because promised by the Word of God. The world has already ended. In the Bible and only proper sense of that term, and the antitypical Jubilee, earth's times of restitution, its springtime begins to count in 1925. When that time comes, all the above blessings will not come instantaneously, but speedily on those who live through the next five or six years of trouble. Suppose nine of every ten people now living on earth should die of famine, pestilence, customary disease and violence during the next five years, (surely an extreme estimate), there would still be living one hundred sixty million people to be the first human beneficiaries of the promise of Jesus: "whoever liveth and believeth on me, shall never die." John 3:16. Even though some of the foregoing may seem startling; nevertheless, all must admit that they are comforting and represent the "desire of all nations." Moreover, if the Bible is truly God's Word, these promises are sure of fulfillment, and many thousands of earnest students have ample evidence that the Scriptures are in truth God's revelation to man; proven by many prophecies fulfilled and by many others now in the course of fulfillment.

No matter what your present ideas may be, in this instance, do not deceive yourself into believing that "where ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to be wise," because life on this earth as a perfect human being will depend upon the individual knowledge and understanding of and acquiescence in the rules of conduct that are to govern the world in its reconstruction in progress and ever after.

Will it not be worth while to hear without money, without price, this subject spoken upon by an able Bible student, Pastor J. A. Bauerlein at Mechanics' Hall, 3 o'clock, Sunday afternoon? You will be welcome and will not be asked to join anything or to subscribe to any fund.—Advertisement.

ANOTHER BIG
MAIL ROBBERY

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Hoodhouse, Ill., Feb. 25.—Three men armed with rifles held up the Chicago and Alton trains, known as "The Hummer," running from Kansas City to Chicago, shortly after midnight last night and escaped with a registered package and registered letters taken from the mail car. The amount of the loot is not known but it is understood the bandits obtained $125,000 shipped by a Kansas City bank to one in Chicago.

Dr. W. W. Campbell, famous director of the Lick Observatory, California, who has announced that not less than 20,000,000 foreign bodies collide with the earth every day. Despite these 20,000,000 bumps the earth wags on. The atmosphere, however, averts many tragedies acting as a cushion and buffer and also wearing away by friction many big and little visitors from space. The friction makes light. That's where the shooting stars come from.

London, Feb. 25.—Premier Kato, head of the Greek delegation attending the Near East conference, declared today that Greece will not accept the terms proposed by the Turks for a settlement of the Ottoman problem.

A canvas of the voters of the town of Milford, Ohio, indicates that "Aunt Dolly" Spencer, the town's most popular woman, will be elected Mayor unanimously, there being no opposition to her. "Aunt Dolly," as she is known to everyone in Milford, will be the first woman Mayor of any city, town or village in Ohio. She has been Chief of Police of Milford for some time and her record for fairness, kindness and belief in the Golden Rule has made her beloved by everyone. Milford has had less use for its jail during her term of office than at any other time on record.

MANY VILLAGES DESTROYED

Charge Deliberate Intention of Wiping
Out All Young Christians—Not
Punished for Religion, Say
Japs, but for Banditry and Rebellion.

Tokyo.—Details of alleged massacres of Koreans by Japanese troops, the burning of Korean villages and the destruction of native crops are given in statements received from Canadian missionaries in the Chientao district of China, supplementing previous reports on this subject heretofore received.

One of the missionaries, Dr. S. H. Martin of Newfoundland, physician, attached to the Canadian Presbyterian mission at Yongjung, who visited the village of Norabawie on October 31, two days after the Japanese went through that district, states:

"The facts recorded below apply to the whole district of Kando or Chientao, in the southern part of the provinces of Kirin, China. Japan, under the strongest protest from China, has sent over 15,000 men into this part of China with the seeming intention of wiping out of existence, if possible, the whole Christian community, especially all young men.

Charges Wholesale Murder.
"Village after village is daily being methodically burned and the young men shot, so that at present we have a ring of villages surrounding this city that have suffered from fire or wholesale murder or both. The facts below are absolutely accurate:
"At daybreak a complete cordon of Japanese infantry surrounded the main Christian village of Norabawie and, starting from the top of the valley, set fire to the immense stacks of unthreshed millet, barley and straw and then ordered the occupants of the houses outside. In each case as the father or son stepped forth he was shot on sight, and as he fell on his face, perhaps only half dead, great piles of burning straw were thrown on top of him.

"I was shown the blood marks on the ground caused by the bayonet thrusts inflicted on the men as they strove to rise from the flames, in spite of the fact that they had been shot three times at close range. The bodies were soon charred beyond recognition. The mothers, wives and even the children were forced spectators of this treatment of all the grown males of the village. Houses were fired and soon the whole country was full of smoke, which was plainly visible from this town. The Japanese soldiers then spread out and burned the houses of Christian believers in other villages all the way down the valley to the main road. Then they returned home to celebrate the emperor's birthday.

Photographs of Murders.
"As we approached the nearby villages we found only women and children and some white-haired men. The women with young babies on their backs were walking up and down wailing. I photographed ruins of 19 buildings, among which were old men tearing their hair and crying, while mothers and daughters were recovering bodies or unburned treasures from the burning ruins. So many women were crying and I was so angry at what I had seen that I could not hold my camera steady enough to take a time exposure.

"We have names and accurate reports of 32 villages where murder and fire have been used. One village has had as many as 145 inhabitants killed. Houses have been burned with women and children in them. At Son-tung 14 were stood up in front of a large grave, then shot and their bodies destroyed with burning wood and oil. This is typical."

Rev. W. H. Fente, Canadian Presbyterian missionary at Yongjung, names several villages in which the homes, schools or churches of Christian natives were burned and says that in one of them 25 people were shot and the bodies hurled. Those cases, he declares, are "absolutely authentic," the premises having been inspected by four missionaries and a customs official.

Eighty Shot at Un Tong Ja.

Quoting Koreans as his authority, he says that 23 persons were shot and seven burned to death in their own homes at Ching San; that 30 were shot at Un Tong Ja, and that there were all Christian villages.

"The soldiers and commanding officers who go to these places," asserted Mr. Fente, "is a general thing have no conversation whatever with the people, but do their diabolical deeds and pass on. For Un Tong Ja is the only place where any reason was given to the people for the action."

"A Korean accompanied the soldiers and told the people that the officer said he had evidence that the owner of the house had collected money for the Korean patriotic purposes. If only the offenders suffered, even the Koreans would not seriously object; but it is because the perfectly innocent and innocent are down to death without even an opportunity to say a word in their own behalf that the Japanese and banditry against."

Describing the action of the Japanese soldiers at Sun Chang, Rev. Mr. Fente said that the young men of that village were "driven to form of a Korean house and, without even a word of explanation, shot down, 20 in

BRIDGE STEEL HERE IN APRIL

Work on the suspension bridge across the Rondout creek is progressing and Contractor Michael expects to complete today the work of filling the anchorage shafts on this side of the creek with concrete, and will shortly start the work of completing the retaining walls for the bridge approach on this side.

No steel was received this month, but it is understood that the steel for the foot bridge which will be swung across the creek so that the construction work can be carried on will be here by March 15. It is also said that Terry & Tench, the bridge contractors, have been promised all of the bridge steel shipments by April 15, so that there will be no delay in the construction work.

ALBANY TROLLEYS ON SCHEDULE

By Telegram to The Freeman. Albany, N. Y., Feb. 25.—Heavy guards of police this afternoon lined downtown streets ready to prevent a recurrence of slight disorders which marked yesterday in Albany's trolley strike.

Several fire hydrants on streets over which cars of the United Traction Company run were turned on during the night. Tracks were flooded.

Few passengers patronized the cars today although a fairly good running schedule was maintained. Up to early afternoon no disorder of any kind was reported to the police.

TURKS AGREE TO COMPROMISE

Will Accept Allies' Decision On Certain Conditions—Greeks Have Not Yet Received Final Instructions.

By Telegram to The Freeman. London, Feb. 25.—Definite progress towards ending the warfare which has been raging in Turkey for months was made by the Near East Conference today. The Ottoman delegates pledged Turkey to abide by the allied commission's decision regarding the future status of Turkish territory on condition that the Greek army in Asia Minor is not moved nor reinforced. The other Turkish conditions were that Smyrna and Thrace be administered internationally during the inquiry of the Allied commission provided that it is concluded in two months.

Both the Turkish delegations and the Greek delegates were present at St. James Palace. Premier Lloyd-George, who was the moving figure of the conference, exerted all his persuasive powers to compromise the rivalries.

The Turks, after rejecting parts of the Treaty of Sevres (the Turkish treaty) promised to accept the rest.

Bekir Sami Bey, head of the delegation representing the Ankara Nationalist government, consulted with his colleagues and then announced that the Turks were satisfied.

While Premier Lloyd-George was reading the Turkish conversations Premier Kallergopoulos of Greece sat listening to them. The Greek premier said he was hourly expecting cabled instructions from his government at Athens.

Our Saturday Sale this week is another sample of the manner in which we can be of assistance to families in which every dollar spent must do its utmost duty. The arrival of home-dressed pork, of which we cut up more than any other market in Kingston, assists materially in lessening the burden of the poorer households. It also helps us to set up a more appetizing feast of specials for Saturday than would otherwise be possible. It has stirred up the employees in our worst-working department to the making of Pork Sausage, Liverwurst, Headcheese, etc., for which products the demand is already phenomenal. Invincible Ink.
Of the many sympathetic inks which become visible on exposure of the writing to heat, following are a few examples: Wash solution of copper sulfate or perchloride of copper, solution of lemon juice, the juice of lemon, onion and other vegetables. With or without heat used on unglazed paper with a clean new pen will not show; a hot bath in the best way to show it up.
